ABSTRACT

Compiled at the Jim Dan Hill Library of the Univeristy of Wisconsin-Superior, this unannotated bibliography of information and review sources includes sections on: general guides to books and nonbook materials; review indexes; comprehensive bibliographies; films and tapes; maps, prints, charts, and microforms; slides; filmstrips, and transparencies; games and simulations, programed and computer-assisted instruction; book selection guides and selection tools; curricula reviews and bibliographies; and periodicals. This basic list of selection tools includes materials which cover levels from elementary to adult and college, is comprehensive rather than subject oriented, and is organized by media type. (LS)

Preface

To assist in the process of message identification and evaluation this guide was compiled so as to include:

1. Bibliographies of messages that are available for purchase
2. Listings comprehensive of all subject areas
3. The most established or commonly used bibliographies
4. Listings of messages in all of the common media
5. Major message evaluating or reviewing services

More specialized bibliographies by subject area, age level, historical bibliographies, etc., are available in the Reference collection of the library.

A listing of the professional staff of Learning Resources is included as an offer of assistance in your tasks of message identification and evaluation.
